FOX SPORTS PACKS A PUNCH WITH DUAL SKYCAMS, SLO-MO ARSENAL FOR PBC TITLE FIGHT IN ARLINGTON'S 'COWBOYS CATHEDRAL'

Tested at Daytona 500, New 'Body Cam' Digiboom and Lights-Out Lighting Package Part of Tech Collection

LOS ANGELES – When FOX Sports presents its first-ever Pay-Per-View for the Premier Boxing Champions title fight Saturday night, including delivering a full on-site studio show, the production power will be in a weight class all its own.

The main event, live from AT&T Stadium in Arlington, Texas, matches unbeaten IBF welterweight world champion Errol Spence Jr. (24-0, 21 KOs), defending his title against four-division world champion Mikey Garcia (39-0, 30 KOs).

"We have a history of super-sizing 'firsts' at FOX Sports, and our initial Pay-Per-View effort with the PBC will live up to that reputation ... and then some," said Michael Davies, FOX Sports SVP, Field and Technical Operations. "With a fight of this magnitude, in a venue of this scale and status, we will be holding nothing back.

"Our FOX Sports team has a lot of experience coming to this amazing facility, covering Cowboys football," Davies added. "We are excited to deliver the big-event feel this audience expects."

With seven Super Motion cameras, SkyCam in the venue and three-axis DynamiCam mini-cable camera flying over the ring, the FOX Sports 22-camera arsenal also features a pair of live digital-cinema units for capturing epic, explosive imagery.

In order to capture the magnitude of an enormous prizefight, ensuring 24' x 24' ring doesn't get lost in the massive stadium, FOX Sports and the PBC are constructing a major lighting package to be used for the show and for the main-event walkouts.

The show features four fights and runs from 9:00 PM ET – 1:00 AM ET on Saturday night. The action gets started at 8:00 PM ET, with preliminary bouts on FS1.
